TIMBER SITUATION CRITICAL, HE SAYS

Alfred Gaskill, State forester of New Jersey, cannot agree with some foresters that the lumbermen have no interest in the stipulations of a national forest policy. This is the statement in a signed opinion in the first of a series appearing in the American Forestry Magazine which is presenting the views of experts on what should be comprised in a national forest policy. Charles Lathrop Pack, also of New Jersey, and president of the American Forestry Association, has called for an expression of opinion as to the best features of a national forest policy, which all agree is badly needed. The discussion is led by Col. Henry S. Graves, United States forester, who outlines his "nine points" of a national forest policy.

Mr. Gaskill says: "There is an insufficient replacement of the waning store of timber in this country. What should be done cannot be decided offhand. A full discussion of the conditions, opportunities, and needs in each section of the country must precede the formulation of a policy.

"A policy to be truly national must have in mind full recognition of the facts that the greater part of the forest lands in this country are in private possession and under State, not Federal, control.

"I cannot agree with some foresters that the lumbermen have no interest in the question. That their interest is largely or solely financial is a fact, but present conditions must change radically before lumbering can become localized and permanent.

Before we can approach the owners of timber lands with any chance of securing results, before we can hope to impress legislators and publicists with the reasonableness of our program, three things must be established: first, the fitness of a given area for continued use (throughout one rotation at least) as forest; second, security against destruction; and third, assurance of the total, or ultimate tax levy.

"The situation is critical but not hopeless by any means. A constructive policy probably can be based upon encouragement to wood-land owners by the Federal Government and by the States; upon active instruction and help to the smaller woodland owners—similar to that furnished farmers; upon fire protection, and upon a modified tax practice; all of which will tend to establish an insurable interest in growing forests.

"I emphasize the phrase 'growing forests.' To my mind the key of the situation is this: not to control over forests already mature, and which under every silvicultural law should fall to the ax as speedily as possible."

JERSEY GOVERNOR CONCEDES DEFEAT

Latest Figures Show Bugbee Won Nomination by 7,000 to 8,000 Votes.

TRENTON, N. J., Sept. 25.—Gov. William N. Runyon, who yesterday refused to admit that State Comptroller Newton A. E. Bugbee had defeated him in the New Jersey primaries for the Republican nomination for governor, has sent a telegram to Mr. Bugbee, congratulating him and conceding his own defeat at the polls.

The latest figures indicated that Mr. Bugbee has won by approximately 7,000 or 8,000 votes. With 181 districts missing out of a total of 2,011 in the State, the figures were: Bugbee, 58,579, and Runyon, 52,186.

In the contest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination, the latest figures with 257 districts missing out of the 2,011, give State Senator Edward I. Edwards, of Hudson, 50,124, and James R. Nugent, of Newark, 53,948.

BOSTON, Sept. 25.—Complete returns from the State primary showed the nomination of Richard Long for governor by the Democrats by a vote of more than twice that of his three opponents combined. The vote was: Long, 53,627; former Gov. Eugene H. Fox, 11,155; former State Senator George F. Monahan, 9,719, and former Representative Frederick S. Deltrick, 4,422.

Gov. Calvin Coolidge, Lieut. Gov. Channing H. Cox, Secretary of State Albert P. Langtry and Auditor Alonzo B. Cook were renominated by the Republicans without opposition.

John F. J. Worcester, of Worcester, formerly colonel of a regiment in the Twenty-sixth Division, was the unanimous choice of the Democrats for the nomination for lieutenant governor. The only "soldier candidate" on the Republican ticket, Frank S. Perkins, who was lieutenant colonel in a Yankee division regiment, was defeated in a six-cornered contest for the nomination for State treasurer. He ran second to State Representative Fred J. Burrell.

FACTIONS GATHER FOR BITTER FEUD

Armed Clansmen to Reopen Warfare in Kentucky Mountains.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Sept. 25.—A feudal outbreak is expected in Breathitt County, reports from there say, as a result of the assassination of Charles Spicer. Two men are suspected, but so far no arrests have been made. The murder occurred on Turkey Creek, in an almost inaccessible part of the Breathitt mountains. Spicer was a son of Asbury Spicer, self-confessed assassin in the Hargis Callahan feud, who after killing Asbury Spicer several years ago escaped jail and since has been at large, though it is known he has been in Breathitt County most of the time. Asbury Spicer has sworn vengeance on the murderers of his son and a large party of Spicer supporters has surrounded the hills where a man suspected in the murder is believed to be protected by his family. Henchmen of the man in hiding have gathered about him and the two factions are said to be assembled in armed camps.

Announcing a Distinct Step Forward in SERVICE—the

Old Dutch Market Bureau of Domestic Science

Under the Direction of CAROLINE B. KING

Domestic Science Lectures of the Philadelphia University Extension Society; Dietitian to the American Expeditionary Forces and a Well-known Writer on Culinary and Household Subjects.

Our one thought in establishing this new department has been SERVICE—to the housewife who wants to make the best use of the foods she buys, whether she buys them here or elsewhere.

The purpose of the Old Dutch Market Bureau of Domestic Science is to impart accurate, honest and impartial information how to market wisely, how to choose a well-balanced ration, how to make the best use of supplies, how to serve meals that will be appetizing, nourishing, wholesome, varied and as inexpensive as can be under present-day price conditions, and to furnish anyone who desires with recipes for any dish she may wish to prepare.

Mrs. King, whom many of our patrons will doubtless know as a valued contributor to the leading women's periodicals—Good Housekeeping, Ladies' Home Journal, Pictorial Review, etc., etc.—will be glad to answer personally any questions on these and similar topics.

We cordially invite the housewives of Washington to make full use of this service, and as often as they have need of it. There will be no charge of any kind, nor does it place the questioner under any obligation whatsoever.

Address your queries to Mrs. KING, Bureau of Domestic Science, Old Dutch Market, 622 Pennsylvania Ave. N. W.
